

SPEAKING OUT

Cabrillo Students Share Stories of Healing

A photographic essay by Jan Goff LaFontaine and Raquel Yeomans

The women in this empowering photo exhibit are all Cabrillo students, and they are all survivors of sexual and physical violence. They break their silence here to share their stories of strength, courage, and healing. Their portraits shine with the inner light of the subject, expressing each woman's visualization of her own healing, brought to life by the photographer. They offer us hope and inspire us to action.

"This is a revolutionary approach using art and oral history to create social change and transformation. It is a work of quiet activism; a refreshing new take on a subject we are all too familiar with—violence against women."

This exhibit will be on display April and May upstairs in the Cabrillo College Library and at the Watsonville Center.
